Y STORY OF IMPACT Leadership

Diego and his sister Emily were new to the Y's Summer Day Camp in Park City, and unlike most campers, they didn't go to the same school as everyone else. Emily was more outgoing and made friends easily. Diego, however, was shy and very withdrawn.

When the counselors noticed him connecting with the younger campers, they asked Diego if he would like to join their group as a "group helper" and he agreed. Diego quickly adapted to his new leadership position and began leading games, teaching songs, and helping others with activities and projects. Most importantly, he began making friends, laughing, and loving his time at camp.

At the end of summer, Diego was unanimously voted by his peers as Value Camper – someone who embodies the core values of the Y. Diego's excitement and joy was unforgettable and is the reason the Y works to provide opportunity for all.
